

Increase Your Communication Effectiveness with Coaching Skills

When managing a team, or leading a department, your communication effectiveness and ability to understand, motivate and empower your people is one of the most important elements for success. At MCW we have developed a highly effective two day workshop to enable attendees to use the attitude, tools and skills of a coaching approach when communicating with people internally or externally.

On these 2 days you will experience:

- How to be a flexible communicator, how coaching can be effective
- The core coaching models and tools
- The key coaching skills - Rapport, Listening, Questioning, Goal Setting and Motivation Values and Beliefs Elicitation
- Plenty of one on one practice sessions

What kind of course will it be?

- This course is the first module of a coaching accreditation journey, or it can be stand alone communication skills workshop.
- Excellent trainer-to-delegate ratio (circa 1:5)
- Course style – fully interactive, applied and tailors to individual requirements
- Course will be lead by experienced NLP and coach Trainers
- We are a ILM recognised training provider

Who are Making Change Work?

- We are a behaviour change consultancy, who work with organisations to realise their potential.
- We are learning and development specialists, and train and coach people in the things we do. Our Website

The cost of ineffective communication?

In a 2009 survey by IDC, UK and US enterprises are losing an estimated £18.7bn each year in direct losses though miscommunication (and this doesn't include intangible losses to brand reputation)

Cost: £399+vat for the 2 day course, in central London

Dates: 23rd 24th February , and 4th & 5th May 2010

Changing Behaviour to Realise Potential